Professor Joshua Lederberg,
School of Medicine,
Stanford University, California.

Dear Dr. Lederberg:

I appreciate your communication, both for your reference to my book and for your thoughtfulness in sending me a copy of it.

As I came to the end of my reading of the reprints you enclosed, I found what seemed to me to be a most pertinent comment. It was in your "Biological Future of Man," on the next-to-last page, where you commented about communications problems as follows: "Incredible to say, within the present system only by chance could I in future discover comments that others might publish in criticism of this very paper." I could easily have missed your Washington Post column. Thanks for calling it to my attention.

Sincerely,

Dean E. Wooldridge

There is now at least a start to answering this need, as you may see from the enclosed tidbits. The coverage is within 10 db of what it ought to be.
